

by Keokuk, and he, with a band of unpatriotic SACS obtained protection from the Foxes under their chief PADWESHUK. In the negotiation following the Black Hawk War, Keokuk aided the government so cleverly that he was made chief of the SACS, his appointment being received by SACS and Foxes with ridicule & contempt. In 1845 he removed to Kansas where his death occurred. His remains were removed to KEOKUK, Iowa in 1883. There they were reinterred in the City Park and the citizens of the town erected a monument over his grave. In the Capital of Washington stands a bronze bust of KEOKUK.
